

CLAIMS

What is claimed is:

1. A product retention package comprising:
 - at least one layer of a product packaging material being sealed to form an internal cavity for receiving a product;
 - at least one retention means positioned in a predetermined position relative to the cavity;wherein
 - the at least one retention means restricts movement of the product across a predetermined location within the cavity to maintain the position of the product positioned in the cavity distal from the predetermined location for opening the product package.